“International Financial Center Regulatory Act”

Act No. 273 of September 25, 2012, as amended

(Contains amendments incorporated by:

Act No. 154 of September 10, 2014)

To regulate the organization and operation of international financial institutions in Puerto Rico authorized by the Office of the Commissioner of Financial Institutions, provide for tax incentives, allow the issue of decrees, fix penalties; and for other purposes.

STATEMENT OF MOTIVES

Act No. 52 of August 11, 1989, as amended, known as the “International Banking Center Regulatory Act,” was enacted as a proper vehicle to transform Puerto Rico into an important international banking center. Likewise, Act No. 73-2008, known as the “Economic Incentives Act for the Development of Puerto Rico,” and other previous similar laws, established that various types of financial services to foreign markets would be considered eligible services in order to obtain a decree. As of June 30, 2011, thirty-one (31) international banking entities, with total assets worth nearly $43.6 billion and only five (5) entities holding tax exemption decrees to render financial services to foreign markets, were operating in Puerto Rico. We believe that Act No. 52 of August 11, 1989 and Act No. 73-2008 have served as a basis to promote Puerto Rico as an international financial center. However, the Act that regulates such economic activity in the Island must become more attractive, so that the desired exposure and development level may be achieved. For such purposes, a new law is hereby proposed to allow international financial institutions to do business and engage in activities authorized thereunder in the most competitive and efficient manner possible.

Service export is an economic activity that has been identified as a key element for the economic development of Puerto Rico, and financial services are not the exception. It is one of the strategies proposed under the Strategic Model for a New Economy (MENE, Spanish acronym) as part of this government Administration’s strategic plan to resume the economic growth of the Island. The plan devised under MENE seeks to promote the development of local companies to help them build capacity to export globally competitive goods and services, attract foreign service providers with new capital that will boost service exports and fully integrate Puerto Rico into the global economy.

This Act, along with the Act to Promote the Export of Services, seeks to broaden the potential market of Puerto Rico’s International Financial Center and significantly increase the Island’s promotion and recognition in the financial industry worldwide.

The main benefits that Puerto Rico will derive from an International Financial Center are the expansion of the service sector, the generation of direct and indirect jobs, and the growth of the economic activity. Puerto Rico offers many favorable conditions to conduct international financial transactions, such as political stability, banking system solidity, a close economic relation with the United States, a high level professionalism, bilingualism, and the technical capacity of its human resources, a unified monetary system and market, a privileged geographical location, and a well-developed communications network.

In order to achieve the aforementioned purposes, this Act provides for the organization of international financial institutions, regulated by the Commissioner of Financial Institutions, which in some cases may obtain a decree from the Department of Economic Development and Commerce that includes tax benefits for the effective term of the decree to obtain income tax rates ranging from 4% to even 2%, in some cases. The issue of a decree will definitely consolidate the presence of international financial institutions in Puerto Rico, for a specified period, and promote the export of financial services to foreign markets, thus maximizing the Island’s potential for economic growth.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of Puerto Rico:

If it is in the best interest of the Government of Puerto Rico, the decree may have an effective term of fifteen (15) years with the intent to ascertain the tax treatment of the applicant international financial institution. As a requirement to obtain a decree and, as provided in the regulations to be adopted, the Secretary of Economic Development and Commerce may impose additional conditions to the international financial institution in connection with the generation of jobs or economic activity. Decrees issued under this Act shall be deemed to be a contract between the licensee, its shareholders, partners or owners and the Government of Puerto Rico, and said contract shall be the law between the parties. Decrees shall be effective for fifteen (15) years, beginning on January 2012 or its date of issue, if later, unless the license is revoked, suspended or not renewed before the expiration date thereof, in which case the decree shall be rendered ineffective on the date of revocation or failure to renew, or during the suspension period, as the case may be. No new decrees shall be issued after December 31, 2019. However, any international financial institution holding a decree issued in accordance with this Act that meets the requirements of jobs, income, investment and other factors established in the decree, may request the Secretary of Economic Development and Commerce, upon recommendation of the Secretary of the Treasury, an extension of its decree for an additional fifteen (15)-year term for a total of thirty (30) years. The Secretary of Economic Development and Commerce, upon recommendation of the Commissioner and the Secretary of the Treasury, may grant an extension to such decree for an additional fifteen (15)-year term, for a total of forty-five (45) years, if he/she believes that such extension inures to the benefit of the Government of Puerto Rico. In these cases, the applicable tax rate shall range between four (4) and ten (10) percent. The Secretary of Economic Development and Commerce, upon recommendation of the Commissioner and the Secretary of the Treasury, shall determine the tax rate that better protects the socioeconomic interests of Puerto Rico. Any recommendation required under this Section from the Secretary of the Treasury or the Commissioner shall be issued within fifteen (15) days after the application for a decree, a copy of which shall be duly notified to the Secretary of the Treasury and the Commissioner on the same date of the application for a decree, or renewal thereof, otherwise it shall be understood that there are no objections to the determination by the Secretary of Economic Development and Commerce. The application for exemption shall be filed with the Secretary of Economic Development and Commerce not later than twenty-four (24) months nor earlier than six (6) months before the expiration of the decree, and shall include the information required by the Secretary of Economic Development and Commerce for such purposes through regulations, circular letter or administrative determination.
