To create the Office of Ombudsman; to provide for and functioning; to establish its duties, powers its organization and procedures for the implementation of this act; to fix penalties and to appropriate funds to carry out the purposes thereof.

STATEMENT OF MOTIVES

Modern society demands its government to render multiple and varied services. The modern state has become an active guide and regulator of the economic and social processes which has led to the creation of large and complex administrative bodies.

Faced with this multiplicity of functions the citizens become confused. When a citizen is adversely affected by administrative rulings, he usually does not know where to appeal and at times is not even aware that he has suffered any wrong.

In several countries, the Ombudsman is the answer to the problems that arise in democratic societies which have become complicated and bureaucratized.

In addition to Sweden, where it originated, this institution exists in Denmark, Finland, Norway, New Zealand, England and Guyana. In several countries such as India, the United States, Canada, Holland and Ireland the possibility of establishing such a system is being considered. The states of Hawaii, Iowa and Nebraska have already adopted this institution.

This all shows that in recent years the Office of "Ombudsman" which originated in the Scandinavian countries has drawn much attention and has been found to be an effective instrument to control bureaucratic excesses.

From the experience obtained in the countries and states where the "Ombudsman" is operating, it has been seen that he has helped to improve government procedures, protect legitimate interests which, intentionally or not, may be ignored or harmed, and has found very effective means to use the resources and time of government agencies to the maximum. Likewise, he has tended to increase the people's confidence in their own government.

In general terms, Puerto Rico is a country that has a modern public administration system and honest officials; consequently we are qualified to establish an Institution of this nature.
Be it enacted by the Legislature of Puerto Rico:
